

Standard 11.5: Planning for Exit

Created by Yasmin Baxter, Pioneer Clubhouse.

"Consumers are assisted to plan for their exit from the MHS to ensure that ongoing follow-up is available if required".

The arrows represent the unbroken path which you can step off when you're unwell and know it's still there when you're ready to step back on. People with joined hands represent acceptance which comes from just knowing you're accepted. The houses mean stability through the supports and continuation of your life that gives you a home to go to as ill periods in life subside. That is why "we grow together" is important to wellness, and support services play such a big part in recovery, which assists us to plan for exit from mental health service.
